The National Networker and Foundercontact to start-up a premium online marketplace in the USA

Web 2.0 network connects entrepreneurs with 3,500 potential investors.

foundercontact International Ltd. and Adam J. Kovitz of Kovitz Enterprises, LLC and its publication, The National Networker, signed an agreement to set up a Web 2.0 network to serve as a portal for US-based entrepreneurs, business owners and service providers to a large network of over 3,500 potential investors worldwide.

foundercontact US will be part of the foundercontact group that currently has network operations in India and Europe. The company will operate as an international online marketplace for entrepreneurs where they can meet online other business owners and expand their businesses anywhere in the world.

Kovitz Enterprises, LLC is engaged in the US market for researching and monitoring the networking industry, assisting businesses in developing better networking strategies and running the highly-successful, The National Networker, the Consumer Reports of networking, that is both an online magazine as well as website portal for all networking activity throughout the United States.

Adam Kovitz, CEO, Editor-in-Chief & King of Business Networking, "Of the many communities we serve with The National Networker, the entrepreneurial community is quite dear to me. As the CEO of my own entrepreneurial endeavor, it is quite exciting to be working with Andre and the rest of FCI to bring this increasingly-accessible global village to our readers."

Andre Maljaars, CEO and co-founder of foundercontact International Ltd. "I'm delighted to get Adam as king of US-business networking on board. With foundercontact we operate a global online network for entrepreneurs. We now can support and regionalize our venture out of 3 leading markets, like USA, India and Europe. We expect to service soon 10,000+ entrepreneurs worldwide and help them to enter value added services that can prosper company growth".

Foundercontact International Ltd. is a leading international marketplace, which has created a unique concept, to link entrepreneurs and investors. CEO André Maljaars and his team have discovered that there are two significant groups of companies; one represents companies having great business opportunities, future-oriented plans and ideas facing difficulties to start them, since it has become difficult to interest banks for support. The other group are investors, from Venture Capital organisations to business angels, who are looking to finance promising ideas, which are often enough out of the box.

... Where Entrepreneurs and Investors Meet

Hence a unique platform was created under the brand of foundercontact, which has already attracted several thousands of members. The target-oriented tools of this platform provide many, steadily growing services to both parties of members and allow meeting and exchanging confidentially their ideas and expertise with the objective to offer a place where offerings and demand are meeting.
